VICTIM OF SLAYER IN THOMASVILLE HOTEL

MISS DOROTHY HAUG.

AGED FATHER CANNOT BELIEVE HIS SON GAVE DRUGS TO KILL WIFE

The investigation into the mysterious death of Mrs. Sallie Lou Barron, wife of Dr. Cary A. Barron who is in the Henry County jail charged with poisoning her, approached its climax in Atlanta Tuesday as the analysis of the contents of her stomach neared completion.

Dr. Edgar Everhart, of the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons, who is conducting the chemical examination, announced that he probably would complete his work by Wednesday forenoon. On the result of Dr. Everhart's analysis the fate of the accused man likely will rest. If traces of poison are found, it will be proof positive in the minds of the dead woman's relatives that her husband is her murderer and they will press his prosecution with all possible vigor.

Dr. Everhart said any report that he had or had not found poison was pure gossip.

Dr. Everhart will make his report directly to Dr. T. H. Maddox, one of the relatives of the dead Mrs. Barron. It was Dr. Maddox and Dr. Hockley, of Milner, who hastened to Atlanta with the stomach and other vital organs as soon as the body had been exhumed.

GRiffin, Oct. 14.—Dr. J. M. F. Barron, a distinguished physician of this section and father of Dr. Cary A. Barron, in jail in McDonough, charged with poisoning his first wife that he might wed Miss Cora Wheeler, of Conyers, Tuesday morning gave a statement to the Georgia defending his accused son, but at the same time dramatically declaring that should he become convinced that the boy is guilty he would not turn his hand nor spend one penny to prevent the law taking its course. The elder Dr. Barron treated Mrs. Barron in her last illness and diagnosed her ailments as entirely natural.

Dr. Barron is one of the wealthiest and most widely known and highly respected citizens of Pike County, and the first public announcement of his attitude in the poison mystery has brought forth many expressions of admiration and sympathy not only from the community generally, but from the close relatives of the dead Mrs. Barron.

In the event the accused is shown to be guilty, however, he must fight alone the battle for his life. He can not depend on the Barron fortune to save him.

When seen at his home Dr. Barron seemed crushed by the arrest of his son and the accusation against him.

As he asserted his firm belief that his son was wrongfully accused and declared he could not conceive of a Barron being capable of committing such a crime, tears welled in the old man's eyes and there was a tremor of emotion in his voice.

Prepared to Fight for Son.
"It is impossible for me to believe my boy guilty of such a crime as is charged to him," said Mr. Barron. "I know no man so unjustly accused. Knowing him as I do and realizing that he is a Barron, I couldn't think otherwise. I can't conceive of a boy of his blood and his training stooping so low as to commit a crime and cheat the life of his own wife, the woman who bore him four perfect children."

From Record When It Is Denied at White House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(Georgian.)—The charge that Thomas Underwood had contributed $10,000 to the campaign of President Wilson when he ran for Governor of New Jersey made on the floor of the House does not appear in the Congressional Record to-day. It was expunged by the Democratic floor leader after he had been told by the White House that Mr. Underwood had not contributed to the campaign.

Notwithstanding the denial issued from the White House, the Georgian learned from one of its men chiefly instrumental in bringing about the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for Governor of New Jersey that Thomas Underwood had contributed $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign.

Colonel George Harvey, according to this newspaper's informant, sought and obtained the contribution from the same source it was asserted that James Smith, Jr., formerly United States Senator from New Jersey, who at the time of Dr. Wilson's nomination for Governor was the undisputed "boss" of the Democratic party in his State, contributed in the neighborhood of $10,000 to elect Dr. Wilson Governor.

Over the long-distance telephone James Smith was at his home in Elberon, N. J., was asked if Mr. Ryan had contributed $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign. "I would respectfully refer you to Colonel George Harvey," he answered.

When a representative of the Georgian called Colonel Harvey's residence at Deal, N. J., on the telephone, a man who answered said:

"This is Colonel Harvey speaking. Questioned as to whether Mr. Ryan did or did not give $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial fund, he answered, 'I am Colonel Harvey's secretary. Colonel Harvey is out dining with friends and will not return until after midnight.'"

Interest in Row.
President Wilson's break with Senator Smith over the New Jersey Senatorial contest in 1911, when Martin was elected, led to the overthrow of Smith as the State leader.

Intense interest was created in Congress by the debate between Representative Hobson and Congressman Underwood over charges brought by the former that Wall Street and the liquor interests were generous contributors to Underwood's campaign for the Presidential nomination.

Excerpts from remarks made by both Hobson and Underwood are here reprinted from The Congressional Record:

Mr. Hobson, rising to a question of personal privilege, referring to his speech at Wetumpka, Ala., said:

"Mr. Speaker, in the late stages of the preliminary campaign for choosing delegates to the Baltimore convention, Mr. Bryan, editor of The Commonwealth, in his issue of May 10, 1912, under the head 'The

Boy Under Legal Age, Hurt in Mill, Gets Big Damages

A judgment of $2,000 for the loss of a finger by an 11-year-old boy while employed in a cotton mill was affirmed by the Supreme Court Wednesday morning. The defendant is the E.H. Cotton Mill Company, of Whitfield County, and the plaintiff is Charlie Grant.

The decision is important, touching upon the child labor proposition. It was shown that the boy was under the legal age of 15. The company admitted knowing this.

"There can be no defense on the grounds of contributory negligence on the part of the boy, for his employment was illegal on account of him being under age," the decision reads.

Train Kills Boy on His Way to School; Chum Sees Tragedy

Thomas Jackson Harris, an 11-year-old schoolboy living with his parents on the McDonough road near the Federal prison, was killed by a Southern passenger train Wednesday at Sawville's crossing.

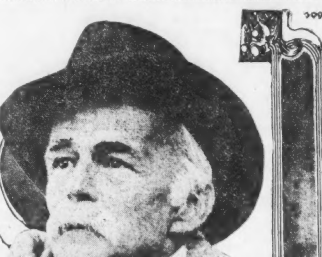

The boy left home with his two brothers to go to the Lakeside Heights School. As a northbound freight train approached the crossing he ran ahead of his brothers and crossed the track. Standing on the track used by southbound trains, he was watching the freight pass and failed to see the passenger train which struck him.

The engine made every effort to stop the train and after the accident took the body of the boy and backed the train to Hammond station.

Conductor Donahoe investigated the accident. There being eye-witnesses, an inquest will be held.

JULIAN HAWTHORNE, FREE MAN ONCE AGAIN

Julian Hawthorne, the novelist, a free man Wednesday, after serving a term in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, told a startling story of his life as a convict, in which he called the Atlanta prison a "living hell," and said Warden Moyer was "unfit."

With all the emphasis at his command, Hawthorne arraigned conditions in the penitentiary as oppressive, cruel, and the equal of the most lurid descriptions in fiction.

"They are starving men in the name of economy," he said.

And Dr. W. J. Morton, of New York, his friend and fellow prisoner, nodded his head in corroboration.

"Prisoners are subjected to treatment that is nothing more than slow murder," said Dr. Morton, who is a practicing physician. "There is never enough to eat. The warden attempts to feed strong men on 9 cents a day, and when he succeeds he brags about it."

In the short time they remained in Atlanta after their release, Hawthorne and Dr. Morton talked much of conditions at the penitentiary, jumping from one detail to the other with a dramatic swiftness that made the story harrowing.

"Oh, yes, you hear of the clean cells in which the prisoners sleep," said Hawthorne. "But you never hear of the 'hole,' do you?" For the slightest fault, sometimes for breaking a plate, sometimes for a little more or less, a prisoner is sent to the "hole," a place under the main building for solitary confinement.

"There the heat is terrific at times, and the stench is bad. There some prisoners are chained by their wrists, and held there with arms outstretched for hours. And sometimes, confinement in the 'hole' is for days."

Scores Prison Fare.
"But the element of hell is in the feeding," he continued, his eyes flashing. "There has never a man gone into the prison but who undergoes a steady deterioration, maybe slow, but always sure. The doctor will tell you that."

He waved at Dr. Morton, who nodded acquiescence.

"Men are put in prison to be cared for," said Dr. Morton, "not to be subjected to slow murder."

The two accepted the invitation of a Georgian reporter to ride into Atlanta. But once in the automobile, they forgot the city, and forgot to ask of one place after another. Hawthorne gripped the sides of his seat, and vowed vengeance on the system which he described.

And the treatment is always that of brute or criminal," he went on. "There are always the guards and the rifles, giving the people the impression that the men in prison are wild men, or desperadoes. And now and then men are clubbed for little or nothing. There is a guard named Dean whom I have seen strike a prisoner over the head, and force no justifiable offense."

Escaped Harsh Treatment.
The reporter wondered if Hawthorne himself had come in for such treatment and asked him:

"No," said the novelist. "I have nothing at which to complain as to my treatment. But Dr. Morton and I were given prison work, and were well treated otherwise. But there is

AUTOPSY REVEALS BULLET IN SLAIN GIRL'S HEAD

RYAN DO GIVE TO WILSON FUND

Underwood Has Fact Expunged
From Record When It Is Denied at White House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Oscar W. Underwood's charge that Thomas Fortune Ryan contributed $10,000 to the campaign fund of President Wilson, when he ran for Governor of New Jersey made on the floor of the House does not appear in The Congressional Record to-day. It was expunged by the Democratic floor leader after he had been told by the White House that Mr. Wilson had received nothing from Mr. Ryan.

It can be said on the highest authority, however, that Mr. Underwood made the statement on information that came to him directly from persons so close to the multi-millionaire Wall street man that Mr. Underwood was justified in placing the greatest faith in its reliability and made the statement in his reply to the charges of Representative Hobson, of Alabama, with a full belief in its truth.

Notwithstanding the denial issued from the White House, The Georgian learned from one of its men chiefly instrumental in bringing about the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for Governor of New Jersey that Thomas Fortune Ryan did contribute $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign.

Colonel George Harvey, according to this newspaper's informant, sought and obtained the contribution.

From the same source it was ascertained that James Smith, Jr., formerly United States Senator from New Jersey, who at the time of Dr. Wilson's nomination for Governor was the undisputed "boss" of the Democratic party in his State, contributed in the neighborhood of $10,000 to elect Dr. Wilson Governor.

Over the long-distance telephone James Smith, who is at his home in Elkhart, N. J., was asked if Mr. Ryan had contributed $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign. "I would respectfully refer you to Colonel George Harvey," he answered.

When a representative of The Georgian called Colonel Harvey's residence at Deal, N. J., on the telephone, a man who answered said:

"I am Colonel Harvey's secretary. Colonel Harvey is out dining with friends and will not return until after midnight."

Tariff Clause That Aids U. S. Shipping To Stand-Underwood

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—"The 5 per cent clause benefiting American shipping will stand in the new tariff act even at the risk of trade wars and other commercial complications," answered Representative Underwood after a visit to the White House to-day.

The fact that a number of trade treaties probably will be strangled by the clause do not worry Mr. Underwood.

He thinks that the United States is well able to care for itself should European nations attempt commercial reprisals.

DR. BARRON CLEARED OF POISONING CHARGE WHEN CHEMIST MAKES REPORT

ATLANTA, GA., Oct. 15.—After seeing the Georgia story of the collapse of the poison case against Dr. J. M. F. Barron, Sheriff C. C. Rowell, of McDonough, Henry County, commented after a long distance phone shortly after 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with W. R. S. Mann, father of the dead Mrs. Barron, and was instructed to release the prisoner. This was done immediately.

The Barron poison mystery which had aroused three counties collapsed Wednesday with the reading of the report of Dr. Edgar Everhart, the Atlanta chemist, which stated that no poison was found in the stomach or other organs of Mrs. Saline Lou Barron.

Dr. Cary Barron, husband of the woman, who has been under arrest at dinner pending the analysis, was released immediately, and the entire matter dropped.

The following dispatch from Atlanta, where the chemist's report was read, tells the story of the collapse of a sensation which has stirred Henry, Spaulding and Pike counties, examining chemist of Atlanta, received here at 12 o'clock Wednesday morning, showed that no poison was found in the vital organs of Mrs. Saline Lou Barron, whose husband, Dr. Cary Barron, has been in jail in McDonough since last Friday on a warrant charging him with her murder.

To Withdraw Charge. W. R. S. Mann, father of the dead woman, told The Georgian that he would withdraw the murder warrant and order the release of his son-in-law. Dr. Barron probably will be freed just as soon as a coroner's jury can be sworn from Zebulon and remove the coroner's jury. He has been notified.

Mr. Mann was disappointed at the report, as he was sure his daughter had been poisoned. The family and friends of Dr. Barron are elated over the news.

"I know my son was innocent and would be vindicated," cried Dr. J. M. F. Barron, father of the young physician, when the report was received.

Dr. Everhart in his report explained that he had not only examined the various organs but had obtained only negative results. He searched for volatile poisons, such as phosphorus, arsenic and chloral, then for mineral poisons, such as arsenic, mercury and the like, and finally for organic poisons, including the alkaloids.

Dr. Everhart corroborated the dispatch from Milner telling of the discovery of no trace of poison when seen by a Georgia reporter Wednesday. The progress of his tests from day to day indicated almost unmistakably that the chemical examination had revealed the innocence of some of the persons, and The Georgian Tuesday predicted as much when it became apparent that the analysis would be concluded by that evening.

The local chemist, however, would give no hint of the outcome of his examination until it had been announced by the Henry County authorities.

Little Spencer, aged 4, one of the four children made motherless, and temporarily fatherless by the Barron tragedy.

posed." The campaign has now progressed far enough to enable the Democratic voters to know the methods that are being exploited by the Wall street crowd to capture the Baltimore convention. Mr. Underwood and Mr. Underwood are the reactionary candidates.

Mr. Underwood was picked first, but the big business began to smile on Mr. Underwood as soon as it became evident that Mr. Underwood was not making headway as a candidate. They have now divided up the territory in which they think a reactionary has a chance, and Mr. Underwood is running in a few states in the North and Mr. Underwood in six states in the South.

Had I known that Thomas Fortune Ryan, the man whom Mr. Underwood named as the Baltimore convention and accused of being the tool of Wall street, was going to capture the party in the interest of Wall street, was financing the major part of the campaign of Underwood, I would not only not have supported him, but I would have fought him, and what is more, he never would have been the choice of the people of Atlanta.

Mr. Underwood—Will the gentleman know that I did not know of Mr. Ryan's contribution to my campaign until he was asked to do so?

Mr. Underwood—I am glad that the gentleman will make that statement now. I asked the people of Atlanta, and I ask him now, when the charge had been made publicly, why did not he look at the books and find out, and then with that prejudice.

Mr. Underwood—I will not answer that question until I have the gentleman to take up my time in making a speech. I am trying to get an answer, whether he did make the charge or not.

Mr. Underwood—I am trying to state it. I am leading up to it so you will understand it, as well as others. I said that if Senator Dinkens's campaign is correct, and my friend admits it, if he did not know he should have known. Why did he not know?

BOMB REPORTED TO HAVE FIRED VOLTURNO

Owners Deny, However, That the Vessel Had Been Threatened by Striking Seamen.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Local officials of the Uranium line today refused to set any credence in a sensational cable report from Liverpool that a bomb explosion in the hold of the Volturmo may have set the three ship crew on fire.

General Manager Thomas, of the line, branded the story as "absurd."

According to the report from Liverpool, Captain Timony, of the Volturmo, Naval Reserve, asserted his belief in the truth of the cable report. He said that the Volturmo was a small ship, and that the bomb explosion had killed the captain and several crew members.

The Volturmo does not give any credence to the story, which is being spread by the striking seamen. The letter purported to come from a seaman on the ship.

Marine labor troubles have again been reported for a year. The Volturmo disaster, it is claimed, was the result of a bomb explosion in the hold of the ship, which was being used to transport coal to the Atlantic coast.

ATLANTA NEW YORK PARIS

Thursday We Will Show for the First Time in Atlanta a Copy of

M. Paul Poiret's 1913 Masterpiece

The "Minaret" Gown

It is exhibited in a big crystal case in the ready-to-wear section, second floor. Paul Poiret started even Paris very recently when he exploited the "Minaret" gown. It is a season of things Oriental, he says, and this is his interpretation of Orientalism. Quite naturally it was inspired by the country typically Oriental Persia.

This copy that Atlanta folk may see is worked out in white chintilly lace and pink charmeuse. The "Minaret" or bodice is of the chintilly lace with a silver tinsel braid forming suspender effect front and back, extending below waist line, ending in a beaded tassel. The double tunic is of the lace, finished around the bottom with shirred silk net, very full, suggesting the bustle effect; finished at front with a big red rose, at the back with a fluffy silk net bow.

The underslip of pink charmeuse, is draped at the side. It is a decided departure from anything the season has brought out, and no one will deny, a charming and graceful departure; indeed the creation of an artist. You are invited to see it.

Among the New Arrivals Are Many Velvet and Velour Suits

The reason is that, as the makers would say, "velvets and velours are strong."

Which is their way of saying that Paris has spoken in the soft tones of velvets and velours.

It is remarkable to note how these skillful men have used rich pile fabrics.

We have been accustomed, in former seasons, to thinking of them as rather unwieldy and stiff.

Just the reverse is true now. Velvets and velours are supple, lending themselves to the most graceful tailoring and to the vogue that says things must drape and enfold and cling.

The result is—exquisite tailored suits!

There are many models to choose from—in many shades. Yours may be a cutaway, or it may be a smart, short coat, simulating a cutaway or with a gridded back. It may have a little vestee—most of them have—of a Dresden silk or an Oriental velour—and it will probably have a bit of fur about it—a "chocker" collar or cuffs of skunk.

And still—Velvet and velour suits are but one phase of the suit question as it is seen and answered here.

There are those sturdy chevrons and mixtures and serges, smart, trim, tailored to perfection, with style in every line and service in every stitch. The variety inspires confidence.

It makes choosing easy. It robs us—even were we so inclined—of the necessity of urging customers one way or the other. You may have spread before you suit after suit until you light upon the one you want.

Rather satisfactory to have such a suit store to depend on, isn't it?

This Is a Good Time to Select the New Corset that is going to play such an important part in the fashions this season. For the new dresses and suits are built on the supposition that the wearer will be corseted according to very sensible and graceful fashion of this good fall season of 1913.

So we have

Miss Jackson, who is up on corsets, an expert in the real sense of the word, here for the week to show the women of Atlanta all about and how it molds the figure to those lines that conform to the lines of the dresses and suits.

It is well worth a woman's time to give a few minutes right now to the fitting of a corset—and then it will be done and done right for the whole season.

There is always a few gut-tones come barbeques that eat as much as six more. Pa said, & they are usually the ones that eat the most. Mar's evidence had revealed the truth about the murder. The word would mean any about the diamonds, and for a little while the investigation was quiet. But then, in the category of myth, it was the police in their daily dealings with crime.

Philip was called shortly before 7:30. He was told and in the weather was chilly, and there was no agent member in the back yard to keep the temperature down. He was at a grateful point during the night.

But his active young frame quickly affected the effects of a deep sleep and a draughty floor. We waited for him and hands at the sink in the scullery, and his next thought was for breakfast. He was not a man who would grow refreshed in mind and body.

In the Mile End room there are plenty of things to be seen. The room, of them, he made a substantial meal, and on his return to the news, he was told that the police had been systematic search through all parts of the house and yard for any traces of the murder. He had been around his own in the darkness.

THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN

Published by THE GEORGIAN COMPANY
At 19 East Alabama St., Atlanta, Ga.
Entered as second-class matter at postoffice at Atlanta, under act of March 3, 1879.

The Long, Tenacious Life of the Smoke Nuisance

It Still Hovers Over Atlanta, But Determined Action by Council Could Kill It Quickly.

Atlanta's smoke nuisance is as old as the city itself. For years it thrived on lax laws and polluted the finest air enjoyed by any city east of the Mississippi river.

During the last twelve months the cloud that once hovered over us has constantly become thinner and weaker.

For such work of relief as has been accomplished, the citizens of Atlanta should give the authorities thanks.

Having been relieved partially, however, it will not do for the city to permit either itself or the City Council to think that Atlanta is satisfied, and that the smoke problem, even partially solved, is a thing of the past.

The smoke laws are not all they should be, of course. The work consummated under them, therefore, necessarily would be incomplete, in any event.

A number of office buildings, apartment houses, hotels, and industrial plants have complied with the ordinance. All flagrant violators, with a few exceptions, have been brought within reasonable limits of submission, relatively speaking. Others are making such changes as soon will make submission upon their part more nearly an accomplished fact.

For these things, Atlanta should render thanks and appreciation to whomsoever the same are due. The smoke nuisance has been relieved to some extent—that admission may be made ungrudgingly.

Experts believe that additional ordinances should be passed, AND THE SMOKE THE BETTER!

The limits in which black smoke may be released should be cut down from twelve to six minutes in each hour. These same experts say further that residences with 1,000 feet of radiation, or more, should be included within the new ordinance.

The railroads are reported to be "considering" still what they may do to help Atlanta in getting rid of its superabundance of smoke and grime, but beyond "considering," the roads do not seem to have performed extensively.

Finally, the City Council appears to have more or less forgotten the smoke problem, and since last year's agitation—vehement enough, while it lasted—that honorable body has left the Smoke Board to proceed along the lonesome road to reform rather to itself! But for the fact that council had a little more to say than anybody about the smoke nuisance originally, its late indifference might not be so marked.

Over and beyond all that has been done, however—which isn't so very much—the big, compelling, and annoying fact remains that Atlanta STILL SUFFERS FAR BEYOND HER DESERVE BY REASON OF THE SMOKE NUISANCE!

The mere circumstance that the trouble isn't as acute as it was a year ago—not quite so acute, anyway—doesn't set off the larger circumstance that IT YET IS ACUTE BEYOND REASON.

Atlanta can get rid of its smoke—surely Atlanta CAN do that.

Atlanta must go the limit in the effort, at least! Appearance, comfort and health demand that this beautiful city be freed of this smoke nuisance—freed utterly and for all time!

The Smoke Board's expressed opinion that it "may be years yet before Atlanta is freed of its unnecessary smoke" will not do. It fails to satisfy in any measure even the most highly appreciative ones with respect to the work already effected.

In one's honest and more or less strenuous endeavor to keep his eye on the good already accomplished, it is still impossible for him not to see that a vast work yet remains to be done!

WHAT WILL THE AUTHORITIES DO ABOUT IT?

The smoke we have with us always—or have had, thus far. What the people want is to see it removed from the attention of their senses generally.

Atlanta should be so overwhelmingly ASHAMED of its smoke nuisance that the question of its rapid abatement should go unchallenged!

And while duly appreciative, as aforesaid, of what has gone before—the City Council should renew its anti-smoke endeavor. AND SHOW THE PEOPLE OF THIS CITY THE WAY TO A QUICK END OF THE LONG AND TORTUROUS ROAD THEY TOO LONG HAVE TRAVELED!

The Red Coats in Boston

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

WHEN 145,000 men, the two regiments of British regulars landed at Boston, it was written down in the Book of Fate that the War of the Revolution was on. To be sure, the meeting of the Continental Congress was full six years in the future, and Lexington had not yet been fired, and the smoke of battle was not yet in the air. But the meeting of the Continental Congress was full six years in the future, and Lexington had not yet been fired, and the smoke of battle was not yet in the air. But the meeting of the Continental Congress was full six years in the future, and Lexington had not yet been fired, and the smoke of battle was not yet in the air.

The ability of men, no less than the phenomena of the material world, are determined by law. Something happens—and then, in consequence of that something, something else happens. It is quite possible that but for the setting of the red coats the Cause of St. George would today be serving over the whole of the North Atlantic continent. It was the King's attempt to answer the reasonable arguments of the colonists with cannon and musketry that made the breach permanent and the separation inevitable. It was the way that had been popular for countless years, the way by which despots had been settling things from the beginning of history, and the situation, for it has turned out that the revolution was not the result of a new time had come, a time in which reason rather than brute force was to be the final judge in all great disputes, and he blindly submitted on to his doom.

As Americans, the proud citizens of the world's greatest and noblest nation, we are very glad that the regulars came to Boston, for it has turned out that the revolution was not the result of a new time had come, a time in which reason rather than brute force was to be the final judge in all great disputes, and he blindly submitted on to his doom.

The Invisible Highways of the Air

"Long Observation Has Shown That There Exists Well-Marked Tracks Which Migrating Birds Followed Year After Year and They Evidently Have Landmarks to Guide Them."

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I HAVE just learned of a singular thing which happened this autumn on the famous pass of the Great St. Bernard over the Alps.

The hospitable monks in the monastery at the summit of the pass, at an elevation of more than 3,000 feet above sea-level, were astonished one evening to see, in the midst of a sudden snowstorm, a black cloud approaching from the north.

The strange apparition soon resolved itself into a vast flock of swallows, which had apparently been driven from their road near the beginning of their annual migration toward the summer lands on the south of the great mountains. Probably they had been confused, by the driving storm.

The monks instantly opened wide all their doors and windows, and the poor birds, accepting the invitation in the spirit in which it was offered, immediately swarmed into the warm halls by thousands, and even flew into the bedrooms of the monks, who welcomed them freely wherever they chose to go.

They were fed and lodged for the night, and the next morning when the doors and windows were opened amid a burst of warm sunshine, the birds joyfully, and we may suppose thankfully, with a multitudinous fluttering of wings, took their departure toward the south, quickly dissolving into the genial atmosphere of Italy.

Then the good monks went amid the newly fallen snow, and with heavy hearts, found hundreds of birds scattered about on the mountain side, where they had perished, being unable in the blinding storm to find their way, with their comrades, into the hospitable shelter of the monastery. This incident, so full of the milk of human kindness, recalls one of the great mysteries of bird life. It is known that few species of birds remain in northern climes during the winter. With unerring instinct they discover the approaching close of the warm season, and start in time to reach more sunny lands before they are overtaken by the invading snows.

Long observation has shown that there exist well-marked tracks which these migrating birds follow year after year on their way both to the south in autumn and back to the north in spring. They go in immense flocks, travel thousands of miles, and only a few of their aerial wanderers, after generation after generation, take the same invisible ways through the air. Many of them fly at great heights, and evidently they have landmarks to guide them. When an aviator starts in his aeroplane on a long voyage he has on a pivoted board before him a map of the country that he intends to traverse, without which he would inevitably lose his way. Even with his map he often becomes helpless when darkness covers the land. The birds have no maps, but night can not lead them astray. They must possess a topographic, or geographic, sense superior to ours. They know the mountains and plains and the points of the compass better than we do.

Those who know most about the life of the inhabitants of the air find the most mystery in it. Says Henri Fabre, the veteran naturalist, whom France has recently honored with honors: "We talk wonderfully about the X-rays which traverse opaque bodies and photograph hidden things. A fine discovery!"

But how insignificant in comparison with the astonishment that the future holds in store for us when better instructed in the ways of things and supplementing by art the feebleness of our senses, we shall rival, however imperfectly, the seasonal antennae of wild animals.

Sometimes they way lies for long distances over the sea. That does not disconcert them. If they encounter a ship they will, occasionally, rest their weary wings on its spars, but when they resume their course there is no hesitation. They are not troubled like the mariner, who looks with equal wonder upon their arrival and departure, with questions of latitude and longitude.

They have no need to consult the pole star, or to "shoot the sun," in order to find out where they are. They carry no chronometers, and their internal sense exceeds the knowledge of the Nautical Almanac.

There are spots on the earth which are like great crossroads for the aerial travelers. The Rock of Gibraltar is one of these. There the routes of the birds come to a focus. Before they transit the straits to spread over Africa, the winged invaders take the famous cable-fortress-rock by storm. From north, northwest, northwest, they pass after the constant line of land lying on the Mediterranean shore, and make it their rendezvous for the final flight to the south. Many nations of birds encounter there, as at a great caravansary, where meeting caravans pass the night and refresh themselves. A hundred avian tongues are spoken at once among the flower gardens and precipitous rocks of the town and island.

The Bosphorus is another center of bird roads. They come from Germany, Austria, and even Sweden. In our country the Mississippi Valley is a great route for bird migration. Other routes lie along the Atlantic coast.

It was long before many naturalists could persuade themselves that birds really traveled so far through the air twice every year. Even the great observer Gilbert White was misled, all his life, by the false notion that many swallows instead of quitting England for the winter passed the frosty months slumbering, like hibernating animals, in sheltered spots, and even buried in mud!

Ella Wheeler Wilcox on Protecting Birds

Boys Should Be Taught Not to Shoot Them, and Schools and Mothers Should Combine to This End.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Not one boy in a thousand receives this preparation and guidance.

The average boy teases for a cat, and receives it as a birthday or Christmas gift, and proceeds to use it after being told to "be careful" by the "loving parent," who goes away and leaves him to his amusement.

At one of the resorts not far from the city, a woman made herself unpopular with her neighbors (mothers of sons of the same age), by telling the boys they must not aim at or shoot birds of any kind on her grounds. Her action was considered unneighborly and her words of advice to the boys to study bird lore and learn kindness were considered impertinent.

There is nothing our public schools need more than to include this education which the Audubon Society offers in the school courses. If you, dear madam, who peruse these lines, want to help make this beautiful world more beautiful and less sad, if you want to aid in forming higher ideals and kinder instincts in the rising generation, in ordering or trimming your autumn hat try and use good common sense, and a little individual taste, and wear a hat which is becoming and beautiful and entirely devoid of any part of a dead bird. Plumes from the ostrich do not mean the destruction of that bird, for the ostrich is a robust fowl and the plumes grow with the ostrich exists, just as the goose grows new down each year. But bodice plumes, those are exquisite grasses and flowers, and leaves and jets, and velvets and ribbons and other trimmings which can make headgear attractive.

Use your good taste and ask your milliner to show some original ideas in building you a hat. Remember the orange and silver crests mean the death and torture of the mother birds, and the starvation of their young as a result. Any refined woman should be ashamed to be seen wearing so artistic effects.

Help the Audubon Society save birds.

and woman of common sense and common sensibility in our land.

It ought to reach the hearts of mothers of young sons who have arrived at an age where they want to express their manly qualities by using a gun.

Every year distressing accidents are reported in the daily press from the use of these "toys" by boys. Companions are blinded or crippled, and the precious lives of beautiful birds are sacrificed, while the killing instinct in growing children is cultivated and fostered.

All because women believe themselves to be "good mothers," and consider they are cultivating the manliness in their little boys by providing them with guns for amusement.

Meanwhile, if the mother began as soon as her little boy could talk, or understand, to awaken in his heart a love and sympathy for birds and beasts, and if she then stipulated that his gun precise should consist wholly in target shooting under proper guidance and instruction, her boy would grow up skilled as a good marksman and yet humane and kindly in his instincts.

Every man should know how to use a gun and revolver.

There are occasions when such knowledge is important.

But there is no part of a youth's education which needs a more careful and wise preparation, and guidance, than this.

Don't hear of any one cutting the price of pheasants, geese, since the tariff was lowered.

Arkansas compels citizens to give five dollars for each dead bird. Who wants a dead bird?

Who who passed a "Crested Bill" has been sent to college by the legislature. Doubt if the penalty is constitutional.

REACHING

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

As a lady might reach for her mother's hand When it bears the well-known voice:

As a pilgrim might reach in a foreign land For a friend with whom to rejoice;

Roaming about o'er a desert here I reach for you—and you are not there.

I have tried so long for a second choice That I know 'tis a fruitless quest.

I have shed so long for your gentle voice That I pray for the endless rest.

Even in dreams and delirium I reach for you—and you never come.

The endless rest! 'Tis the only boon I ask of the powers that be:

The rest that follows the uneasy swoon This side of Eternity.

Out in the Star Land vague and vast, If I reach for you, will you come at last?
